

PARENT INFORMATION BOOK STUDY

FROM EMOTIONS TO ADVOCACY

ADVOCATING FOR YOUR CHILD can sometimes feel overwhelming, especially when you're trying to understand special education, communicate your concerns, and make important decisions about your child's education.

Join other parents and caregivers for a supportive and interactive book study of 'From Emotions to Advocacy - A Special Education Survival Guide' written by Pam Wight and Pete Wright of Wrightslaw

Together, we'll explore how to:

- Better understand your role as your child's advocate
- Prepare for meetings and important conversations
- Organize your child's records and information
- Ask questions and communicate concerns effectively
- Use information and data to make informed decisions
- Work more effectively with your child's school team
- Turn concerns into clear, meaningful action steps
- More than a Book Study!

Each session will include opportunities to learn, reflect, ask questions, share experiences, and practice advocacy strategies you can use when supporting your child.
